Commissioner Menis referenced the comments made on Page 6, Lines 8 through 13 of the February 28, 2022 meeting minutes and asked the status of the development of objective standards to comply with Senate Bill (SB) 9, and was informed by Planning Manager David Hanham that the discussion for agenda Item G1 would be one aspect of creating objective standards. He explained that all of the different zoning districts of the City would be reviewed to create objective standards and would be presented to the Planning Commission over the course of the next few meetings. The Planning Commission may discuss this topic further at the end of the meeting.

Commissioner Wong reported he had watched the video for the February 28, 2022 Planning Commission meeting.

Discussion of concepts for parklet standards and design guidelines

Mr. Hanham presented a PowerPoint presentation of the Parklets Design & Requirements which included an overview of the safety and traffic issues, aesthetics, costs and economic development as detailed in the March 28, 2022 staff memorandum, and recommended the Planning Commission direct the Planning Ad-Hoc Design Review Committee to work with City staff to develop policies and guidelines for parklets in the City of Pinole.

Responding to the Commission, Mr. Hanham clarified:

The PowerPoint presentation would be posted on the City website for the benefit of the public.

Acknowledged a recommendation to consider the parklet design standards proposed by the City of Pleasanton which included details on platform maintenance.

- In most cases parklets had been used in restaurants and in gathering places. When a business applied for a parklet design and as the application was processed, a maintenance plan would be set up for the business.
- Use of the public right-of-way (ROW) for a parklet would not limit who may or may not use the ROW.
- Parklet examples were provided as part of the PowerPoint presentation. Most of the parklets in Pinole involved outdoor dining areas all connected to restaurants, not retail establishments. If a retail establishment wanted a parklet an application could be submitted for consideration.
- La Famiglia Italian Restaurant, as an example, desired to provide a temporary dining area during the pandemic. The City allowed the business to have a temporary outdoor area, although the business wanted a permanent setup which would have required a Conditional Use Permit (CUP) and would have included the sale of alcohol. Given the more in-depth CUP process, the business had ultimately withdrawn its request. The City had not informed the business it had to remove the temporary parklet, which was permitted as part of an Emergency Ordinance adopted by the City Council during the pandemic when the business had been issued a Temporary Use Permit.
- Some businesses were desirous to make their parklets permanent but since the City did not have any design guidelines in place such requests required Design Review approval.
- Staff was of the opinion that individual outdoor dining areas that had been temporarily permitted in parking lots of an eating establishment were not parklets but outdoor dining areas for the individual businesses. The outdoor dining was usually located on private property. A parklet would be more open to the public

Commissioner Kurrent expressed concern with parklets being utilized by other businesses beyond the business that applied for the approval of a parklet. While parklets were an idea that came out of the pandemic, their use would diminish as the pandemic restrictions were lifted. He could see parklets as part of a private parking lot but suggested this idea would create a set of problems moving forward

Commissioner Kurrent understood La Famiglia had a parklet located in the front of the business but it had been removed. He questioned an applicant being asked to bear the cost of maintenance of a parklet, which would be a public space. Rather, he suggested the cost of a parklet be borne by and maintained by the City as opposed to a way for the business to expand the space of an initial business at minimal cost but taking away a public space, such as a parking lot.

In terms of street safety, traffic, and the recommendation for a parklet to be located on roadways with a speed limit of 25 MPH, Commissioner Kurrent cited San Pablo Avenue, a heavy commute area, and suggested parklets should be restricted on roads of regional significance, particularly given accidents where vehicles had driven into parklets resulting in injury or death.

Commissioner Martinez suggested a design guideline should be considered to address utility maintenance in the vicinity of a parklet since the infrastructure may have to be moved for a period of time for any maintenance work, and Mr. Hanham expressed his hope the Planning Commission would approve the staff recommendation for the Planning Ad-Hoc Design Review Committee to work with City staff to develop policies and guidelines for parklets in Pinole, which would allow a more in-depth discussion of the issues. He agreed that care had to be taken where parklets were allowed to be placed given existing utilities and needed maintenance.

Commissioner Martinez also suggested a standardized way to address aesthetics, such as adding more detail to soften the appearance of the parklet whether through plants or trees. In terms of cost, he suggested the business should bear the costs of adding more square footage via a parklet which was why cities such as Walnut Creek and San Francisco had allowed businesses the alternative to expand the business through such a design and which would be a way to increase the City's sales taxes and provide the business a greater chance of success.

Commissioner Wong left the meeting at 7:30 P.M.

Vice Chairperson Moriarty was uncertain why this issue had come up given the limited development of parklets in Pinole.

Mr. Hanham reiterated that some businesses wanted to create a permanent situation for their outdoor dining areas. There was also a push to create more of a destination area in the downtown with parklets adding to that opportunity. If parklets were to be allowed in parking lots, rules and regulations would be needed to ensure adequate parking and a nice dining experience.

Vice Chairperson Moriarty continued to struggle with the need to develop regulations for potentially one to two options. She questioned the use of such regulations as minimal with only one or two businesses currently having outdoor dining in parking lots.

Mr. Hanham acknowledged that if the area of San Pablo Avenue did not allow parklets, the City would be limited to where they might be located. Parklets would allow the City another avenue for businesses that did not have a lot of square footage in the interior, ability to expand the square footage outside, and create the ability to approve parklets since the current Pinole Municipal Code (PMC) included no guidelines or objective standards for parklets.

Vice Chairperson Moriarty expressed a desire to decrease the speed of traffic along San Pablo Avenue to 25 MPH but that would not realistically happen even through the downtown. She suggested the current speed of traffic was unsafe. She again questioned the importance of the regulations but understood the need to get ahead. She supported forwarding the issue along to the Planning Ad-Hoc Design Review Committee but did not want to spend too much time on something that may not be that important to the community. She acknowledged that during the pandemic parklets in some communities had been positive, although she did not see that happening much in Pinole.

Chairperson Banuelos inquired of the definition of a parklet, which he saw as nothing other than for a restaurant/eating establishment. He recognized that outdoor dining had come about due to the pandemic and while there were currently few such spaces in Pinole, he suggested if more were available they would be used. He could envision such amenities in other areas of the City such as in shopping centers which would involve a host of issues. He had seen some parklets that were very unattractive losing the identity of the restaurant and suggested that regulations on size and appearance should be considered. He offered examples of parklets in other communities, some of which allowed the consumption of alcohol outdoors which involved other regulations. If the cost of the parklets was to be shared, it meant the City would have to bear some of the costs, which meant the City would not do it. If the business wanted the parklet, the business should bear the cost and the parklet would be exclusive to the business.

Mr. Hanham explained if Tina's Place wanted a parklet on San Pablo Avenue, as an example, and wanted to serve alcohol outdoors, it would have to adhere to the requirements of the State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC). In some cases, cities had allowed an individual business to own the parklets, the business would assume the liability and would indemnify the city if the outdoor eating area was located in the ROW or on a public street.

Assistant City Attorney Alex Mog explained that ABC had modified its regulations significantly because of the pandemic through 2022 and had begun allowing more flexibility for outdoor alcohol consumption such as allowing purchase to-go drinks. He understood ABC required outdoor eating establishments with parklets that served alcohol to be self-contained and include a barrier between the street and the alcohol being served. The City's regulations would require compliance with ABC regulations if alcohol were to be served in the parklet.

The PMC prohibited the consumption of alcohol anywhere where it was visible in public and as part of this process, the City Council may modify the PMC or provide clarification on the consumption of alcohol to avoid violating that provision.

 Chairperson Banuelos commented that some of the decisions would be made by the City Council. The Planning Commission's purview would be on land use and would include design criteria on size, roofs, signage, lighting requirements, Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) requirements and drainage.

Mr. Hanham clarified that it was likely the parklets would involve a recommendation from the Planning Commission to the City Council.

Chairperson Banuelos agreed that parklets be restricted on San Pablo Avenue, although there may be a desire for a business to have them on that roadway. He agreed traffic was an issue and there had always been back and forth about traffic calming on San Pablo Avenue although that had not been supported by the businesses. That issue may come up again if parklets were permitted. Most parklets he was aware of had been placed on side streets or quiet areas of a main street. He suggested guidelines that covered the majority of what people would want with a mechanism for something they may not think of should be considered by the Planning Ad-Hoc Design Review Committee. He also suggested any fees should be minimal, the option for parklets should not become prohibitive and the process should be straightforward and as simple as possible. He liked how the City of Walnut Creek had permitted its parklets. He suggested that local businesses be polled to determine the interest in parklets and whatever aesthetic requirements were imposed should be similar or the same as the original site.

Commissioner Kurrent reiterated his concerns with parklets being allowed to be built out into the street, which could be unfair to the public and to some businesses. He understood in the City of Livermore that non-restaurant businesses has been opposed to parklets given the loss of parking and emphasized that the loss of public parking would have to be taken into consideration. There could also be issues of what was community property, with potential ownership and investment complications. While parklets may have been helpful during the pandemic, he suggested that may no longer be the case and he opposed pursuing the issue of parklets given the number of potentially unresolved ownership, responsibility and control issues.

Mr. Mog explained that the public ROW belonged to the City and the City may decide who may use the ROW and for what purpose, and how that was structured would be a decision for the City Council.

Commissioner Menis suggested it was worth considering the parklets in terms of land use planning since there were traffic calming impacts the parkets may offer if designed appropriately.

Vice Chairperson Moriarty agreed but the question was whether or not there was a desire for parklets from the restaurants along San Pablo Avenue and she was also uncertain Caltrans would permit that to happen.

Mr. Hanham reported he had submitted an email to the Public Works Analyst/Inspector to obtain additional information and would follow up.

Vice Chairperson Moriarty inquired of the status of a prior request to place an item for future agenda items on Planning Commission meeting agendas, and Mr. Mog stated he would review the Planning Commission bylaws to ensure the meeting agenda did not have to be modified or something would be brought back for Planning Commission consideration to modify the meeting agenda to include requests for future agenda items. The typical process for a request for a future agenda item required a majority of the Planning Commission to add an item to a future agenda. Staff would have to run the request by the City Manager and Community Development Director since the City Council may or may not want staff to spend time and resources on certain items.

Mr. Hanham confirmed he would forward future agenda item requests to the Community Development Director prior to placing the item on a future agenda.

Vice Chairperson Moriarty inquired of the status of a joint Planning Commission and City Council meeting, and Mr. Hanham reported a joint meeting had tentatively been scheduled for the Housing Element and he would check with the Community Development Director to determine whether additional items could be placed on the same meeting agenda.

Vice Chairperson Moriarty inquired of the status and location of the Sprouts trees, to which Mr. Hanham stated he was working with the developer on some of the agreements between the City and the developer. The median would be refurbished and a bench or place for seating would be provided near the creek. There was a bond on the project the developer wanted to eliminate and once an agreement had been reached on that issue work would commence in the median.

Mr. Hanham added he had been working with the owners of the bowling alley property and based on comments from the Planning Ad-Hoc Design Review Committee, the color scheme for the building would be consistent with the colors within the Gateway Center.

Commissioner Kurrent reported some Planning Commission terms would expire in April. He requested that the appointment of Chair, Vice Chair and members to the Planning Ad-Hoc Design Review Committee be agendized for a future meeting.

Mr. Hanham confirmed the items would be agendized for the Planning Commission meeting of April 25. He also stated, when asked, that Commissioner Wong would be termed out.

Commissioner Menis suggested that any additional items added to the meeting agenda in the future include time limits for each item given the significance of the items due to come before the Planning Commission.

1		Vice Chairperson Moriarty suggested there be a way within the confines of the
2		system to ensure that when things came up they were addressed depending on
